Dear Tyler

It was a pleasure to speak with you this afternoon and to inform you that we have received communication from the Transplant Center.

Thank you for your recent donation to help save a life of someone unknown to you. We are grateful for your decision to participate on the National Marrow Donor Program (NMDP). You have changed the lives of the recipients' family. You helped bring them HOPE, one of the strongest healers we have. You have extended the time this family has with your recipient. You have truly put a smile back into the drive for life.

Again, thank you very much for your concern for others in need.

Sincerely,

Roxann Johanson, LPN
Marrow Program Nurse Coordinator

Dear Donor,

There really isn't any way that I can adequately express my gratitude for the gift that you have given to our family. Your decision to donate bone marrow has given my son, [REDACTED], a chance to live. I am in awe of the sacrifice that you have been willing to make, your selflessness and bravery. I know that you suffered pain and discomfort to give [REDACTED] a second chance at life. Please know that the person who now shares your DNA is an amazing and wonderful person.

Eight years ago, [REDACTED] was born with a genetic condition, known as Fanconi Anemia, which has now resulted in bone marrow failure. He is a spunky, sweet and very smart second grader who has faced adversity with strength, humor and unwavering optimism. As his teacher says, he is indefatigable! He has brought joy to my life from the moment he was born and regardless of how this turns out, I will be forever grateful for each and every day I have spent with him.

Because of you, [REDACTED] has a chance to grow up, go to college, have a family and contribute awesome things to the world. He has this opportunity because of you and the choice that you have made. You are my hero and will forever have a place in my heart.

I am humbled by your generosity and kindness. While I will never adequately be able to express just how grateful I am, please know that it is endless, enduring and sincere.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart.
